Norman Southampton was laid out with a grid of streets, quays and merchants houses. The town was defended by ramparts and ditches on the landward side and by a castle on the west. It was served by five parish churches, a Friary and God's House Hospital. Ships laden with goods such as wine arrived from across the Channel, and woollen cloth was exported. Commodities were stored in the vaults beneath houses or in purpose-built warehouses. Later Southampton was defended by a Town Wall with many towers and eight gates. Evidence from archaeological excavation and surviving documents and buildings give a vivid picture of the lives, occupations, and health of the people of medieval Southampton.

Speakers include: Duncan Brown (pottery); Ian Friel (ships & technology); Phoebe Merrick (cloth trade); Ian Riddler (woman falconer); Andy Russel (buildings); and Mary South (disease & health).

Registration and coffee from 9.30am. Talks start at 10.00am and the day ends at 5.00pm. Tea and coffee will be served mid-morning and afternoon, and at lunchtime. Lunch is not included but there are lots of cafes and shops close by, or you are welcome to bring a packed lunch.
